MOBILE ELECTRONICS NEW PRODUCTS
Here Today, Demonstrating Tomorrow

Responsible for keeping us connected and safe on the road, mobile electronics new products are leading the charge into the automotive future. The 2016 SEMA Show was well represented with mobile electronics products from across the globe, focusing on driver safety, vehicle information and much more. In total, the category covered nearly 50,000 sq. ft. of exhibitor space, an increase from 2015. The following is a collection of mobile electronics new products from the 2016 SEMA Show.

Transformative technologies are changing how cars are designed, developed, customized, sold, serviced, shared and owned. Central to this transformation is mobile electronics and the integration of aftermarket automotive and consumer electronics for safety performance, connectivity and new mobility services. Advanced vehicle technologies from ADAS to autonomy are driving this shift, and it’s being shaped by demographic, regulatory, social and environmental pressures. People will continue to love cars and the individual freedom and mobility they provide; however, cars, mobile electronics and the world around them will look a lot different by 2025.
